Unique Histories, Experiences, Needs, and Strengths

Cultural & Historical Trauma

'OHANA
CENTER OF EXCELLENCE

Like other native peoples, the effects of colonization, assimilation, and acculturation have been devastating for Native Hawaiians. The chance arrival of Captain James Cook in 1778 unleashed five devastating interrelated forces still evident today:

- 1) rapid depopulation,
- 2) foreign exploitation,
- 3) cultural conflict,
- 4) adoption of harmful foreign ways,
- 5) Illegal Overthrow of recognized, sovereign Hawaiian Kingdom and
- 5) neglect, insensitivity, and malice from the dominant society (Blaisdell and Mokuau, 1991).

Cultural Reclamation

CENTER OF EXCELLENCE

Historical and cultural trauma affect multiple generations and are linked to Native Hawaiian health disparities.

The remedy for cultural trauma is cultural reclamation.

Bridge to Community

CENTER OF EXCELLENCE

Ho'akā Mana, with the knowledge that cultural healing is a protective factor for harm reduction, we recognize the need to assess individually through observation and making connections. Ho'akā Mana offers care packages for safety, provisions, and gift cards for those in need

Kula no nā po'e o Hawai'i (Kula) held donation drives and took supplies to homestead communities affected on Maui. Homestead communities are very tight-knit. Papakolea Homestead has done extensive work conducting needs assessments on Native Hawaiian health needs within the homestead communities throughout Hawai'i.

Bridge to Community

'OHANA
CENTER OF EXCELLENCE

Kawika Aspili, a traditional healing practitioner, provided over 30 hours of lomilomi to 60 individuals impacted by the Lahaina fires. He traveled around providing both mele, music, and lomilomi massage healing at different sites where displaced individuals and 'ohana were staying.

Laulau Solutions believes that providing the community with access to land and traditional foods greatly helps to address addiction and mental health issues. This land serves equally as a place for people to express their energy, emotions, and gratitude for life and the opportunity to give back through working in 'āina. These practices have been proven to lower cortisol (stress) levels and return people who use substances to a state of health and wellness; the practice of poi pounding is a spiritual, emotional, and physical task. Providing the supplies to conduct this practice within the home is a multi-generational cultural tool for harm reduction.

Who we are

We are an indigenous-led Native Hawaiian Organization on Molokai that services Indigenous peoples across the pae 'aina; State of Hawai'i and on the continental U.S. Our mission is to inspire healthier families by connecting 'ohana to Native Hawaiian practices focusing on emotional and mental well-being by establishing indigenous identity foundations through experience and education.

What we do

Malama kekahi i kekahi me ka ho'a malama.
Strengthening indigenous identity as a community to thrive sustainably through skill sets, self-sovereignty, and healing.

Centering

Providing space to center self to it's optimal well-being. Always starting each curriculum & project with the key to Ho'i I Ka Piko, which is O Wai 'Oe. Who you. This begins the journey to strengthening self-identity and healing.

Health

Mauli Ola or Optimal Health is a conscious aspect of our work with individuals & community. We aspire to create the safe spaces needed to secure vulnerability and openness through indirect approaches with culture as health model.

Culture

Identifying the counter aspect of our growth as indigenous peoples and peoples of Hawai'i allows for us to visit what was once taken from us. Being who we were meant to be and vitalizing our connection to what is innately within our spirits.

The Initiative

'OHANA
CENTER OF EXCELLENCE

Provide immediate cultural healing & prevention activities to assist individuals and communities in recovering from the effects of natural human-caused disasters by integrating Crisis Counselors, also known as 'Ulu, and providing EMS (emotional, mental, and spiritual) support with balance and equity.

1. Provisions for survival.
2. Organizational assistance within the community and natural areas for families and individuals to access resources.
3. Identifying the leaders within the community and providing necessary support under their guidance.
4. Creation of cultural and art workshops to provide safe and secure spaces for individuals and families to attend.

The Initiative

'OHANA
CENTER OF EXCELLENCE

Mental and Emotional

1. Action vs Emotion
2. Communication was limited to outside of Lahaina
3. Those inside of Lahaina were either hard at work in “action” to the next steps or hidden in their homes in darkness and silence.
4. Within the first month, there were ample amount of “outside” support, some were helpful and others were opposing.
5. After month 2 things started to settle in, government help was more accessible and people had high hopes, due to the incident, many of their hopes became unsatisfied expectations that large governmental or non-profit groups could not provide quickly enough.
6. After month 3 there were already 19 suicides and depression became prevalent. Temporary housing, invasion of privacy, and too many outside entities over-protecting were a lot of the effects.
7. After month 4, there were about 40 suicides unreported, and many families were removed from temporary housing due to insufficient information, compliance, or various other reasons. Of the 23 families we were working closely with 4 moved to the continent, and 3 to outer islands.

The Initiative

“ As wahine, we are in deep need of cultural resilience through these touch times. We have leaned on our counterparts for far too long and the journey to stand once again in our bodies and our mana is a gift.” – Anonymous Participant

Clinic offers integrated approach to pain management

By Treena Shapiro

As communities across the nation grapple with an opioid epidemic, the Waianae Coast Comprehensive Health Center has opened a new pain management clinic that uses an integrated approach to reduce reliance on narcotic medications.

“We owe our patients much better than they’ve been getting,” said Dr. Winslow Engel, the pain management program’s clinical director. “They’re suffering not only from the pain, but also the treatments.”

Ho’okūola Hale opened its doors last October and within six months was treating 350 patients with chronic pain. The clinicians employ a variety of strategies – traditional Hawaiian healing and that and direct people to the things that really help them more,” Engel program director Dr. Niki Wright.

Wright noted some doctors across the nation and in our state are no longer willing to prescribe narcotic painkillers in light of the opioid crisis, however, cutting off medication abruptly can lead to other complications. “They go through this terrible physical withdrawal so they end up buying backward if someone has not yet started on opioids. That’s a set of shackles that no one really wants if they understand it completely.”

Cultural activities may also be part of the treatment – Hawaiian practices like lomilomi, lei making and hula may be employed, as well as healing practices from other cultures. Director of of Hā Ola Village Dr. Kyle Chang developed the health center’s cultural village with the oversight of their Elder’s Council to offer Hawaiian cultural practices to inspire patients to become empowered in their healing and well-being. The health center’s resident artist Sooriya Kumar will also have a role, incorporating meditation, arts and crafts

Outcome Measures

First two years of chronic pain management services

- 1,488 patients
- 15,660 encounters
- Significant reduction in low acuity ED visits
- Significant reduction in patients' opioid dose

IOP = Increased positive outcomes by over 25%
